

Study Abroad through CIPA For Business Students

Emory University

Semester Study Abroad

Business majors only: Students who are Business majors must first visit BBA International Programs in the Goizueta Business School to find out about the semester study abroad programs offered. Under certain circumstances, Business School students may petition to participate on a CIPA semester study abroad program. For instructions regarding the petition process, please contact valerie_molyneaux@bus.emory.edu. The CIPA application form must be signed by Valerie Molyneaux under Part 4: Academic Advisor Signature.

Joint Business and College majors: Students who have a Business major and a major in the College are considered officially to be Business students. Under certain circumstances, double majors may petition to participate on a CIPA semester study abroad program. For instructions regarding the petition process, please contact valerie_molyneaux@bus.emory.edu. The CIPA application form must be signed by Valerie Molyneaux under Part 4: Academic Advisor Signature.

Summer Study Abroad

CIPA SUMMER STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS

Emory summer study abroad programs offered through CIPA are open to all students of Emory University, including Business School undergraduates.

Information is generally available in November on the CIPA website and at the CIPA Summer Study Abroad Fair held in the DUC. Applications are accepted starting January 2; the deadline is March 1, but early application is advised as many programs are popular and fill before the end of January.

The French Studies program is the only CIPA summer program that offers a business course—BUS 370, Introduction to International Business. However, there are generally between 16 and 20 programs from which to choose, and students can fulfill GERs, earn credits towards a College major or minor, or earn general elective credits.

“NON-EMORY” SUMMER STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS

Joint Business and College majors who want to participate in a “non-Emory” summer program must first seek approval from BBA International Programs in the Goizueta Business School. If approved by the Business School, students may petition for a non-Emory summer study abroad program through CIPA. CIPA must receive an email of approval from Valerie Molyneaux in order to process the petition.

Business majors who want to participate on a “non-Emory” summer study abroad program for either Business School credit or College credit must consult with Valerie Molyneaux in BBA International Programs in the Goizueta Business School.

Please note: Be sure to consult with each respective office regarding grade and credit procedures, as there are differences in policy between the College and the Business School.
